The Healing Power Of Music

Education And Interactive Arts Sessions With The Legendary Byron Janis

What's the legacy of a legend? Virtuoso pianist Byron Janis has overcome the obstacles of performing with psoriatic arthritis to become a composer, an educator and a humanitarian.

"I am profoundly moved by his unwavering resolve for inspiring others to move past their barriers. Despite the potentially career-ending diagnosis of psoriatic arthritis, he persevered against the odds and offers myriad personal experiences, insights and perspectives that must be shared."

– Dr. Barry Bittman, MD CEO, Yamaha Music & Wellness Institute

Byron Janis, renowned as one of the world's greatest concert pianists, has recently announced he has become a Yamaha artist. In addition to his other public and private appearances, Mr. Janis will participate in Master Classes, lectures, recitals and performances produced by Yamaha Artist Services New York, and at partner schools, institutions and venues. Also, he has been chosen to serve in the unique role as presidential advisor to the Yamaha Wellness Institute.

"To have a pianist of this stature join Yamaha affirms the quality of our pianos," says Bonnie Barrett, Director of Yamaha Services. "He brings a wealth of unparalleled talent to Yamaha in a role that transcends both performance and medicine. I am particularly thrilled to welcome Byron Janis to our worldwide family of Yamaha artists. A legend among pianists, he is a transformational and transcendent artist who continues to inspire new generations of music lovers." Mr. Janis' dual role with Yamaha is a natural outgrowth of his life's experiences. In 1973, he developed a debilitating case of arthritis in both hands and wrists with doctors telling him he would never play again – to their amazement, he was undaunted and continued touring and recording. In 1986, at a lunch given by Nancy Reagan at the White House, it was announced for the first time that Byron Janis was suffering from psoriatic arthritis and would be working with the Arthritis Foundation as their National Ambassador to the Arts.

Helping Others Pursue Their Passions

He maintains a busy schedule presenting Mind Over Matter workshops for millions who suffer from the disease, encouraging participants to achieve their goals despite the obstacles. His focus recently has been on children suffering with Juvenile Arthritis, a aspect of the disease that has until now commanded less public awareness. Mr. Janis' work in the field of arthritis advocacy complements the activities of the Yamaha Music and Wellness Institute which is committed to bridging the gap between music and medicine on both scientific and educational levels. "Byron is an extraordinary inspiration on many levels," said Barry Bittman, MD, CEO and President of the Yamaha Music and Wellness Institute. John Klippel, M.D. goes on to say, "Byron Janis shares the unspoken challenges of living with a debilitating form of arthritis that tested his spirit and threatened his career as a piano virtuoso. His story of perseverance, courage, and triumph will inspire anyone who has faced a formidable obstacle."

He was recently drawn to Yamaha following the 2010 introduction of the company's CFX concert grand piano, the pinnacle of Yamaha's piano line, representing 19 years of research and development. "The moment I began playing it," Janis said, "I could tell that the Yamaha CFX piano had a resonance, purity of tone and an ideal action, making it a truly superb instrument."

Ms. Barrett is particularly excited about Mr. Janis' integral role in the launch of Yamaha Remote Live. This remarkable breakthrough technology enables a performance played on a Disklavier reproducing piano to be streamed to other Disklaviers anywhere in the world in tandem with a video broadcast, making it ideal for remote Master Classes, concerts and other special events.

About Byron Janis

The first pianist to study with the great Vladimir Horowitz, Janis made his highly successful orchestral debut with Toscanini's NBC Symphony Orchestra in 1943 at age 15. His career as a concert pianist was launched the very next year. In 1960, the United States Department of State chose him to open the first Cultural Exchange between the United States and the Soviet Union. At that time, The New York Times reported that, "If music could replace international politics, Byron Janis could consider himself an ambassador breaking down Cold War barriers." Mr. Janis was invited back by the Soviet Union in 1962 where he had a triumphant 7-week tour, which again captured major newspaper headlines. In 1978, he created a highly acclaimed television program Frederic Chopin: A Voyage with Byron Janis which aired multiple times on PBS stations throughout the United States and in countries around the world.

In 1988, President Ronald Reagan honored Mr. Janis at a State Dinner at the White House marking the 40th anniversary of his stellar Carnegie Hall debut. Mr. Janis has had the great honor of being invited six times by four sitting Presidents to perform at the White House. He was also written into the Congressional Record of both the Senate and the House of Representatives, honoring him as a musician, a diplomat and an inspiration. He has written an autobiography, Chopin and Beyond: My Extraordinary Life in Music and the Paranormal which, along with his musical career and 35-year battle with arthritis, shares some never-before-told extraordinary events which he has experienced in the field of the paranormal. An inspiring DVD produced by Emmy-award-winning film maker Peter Rosen entitled The Byron Janis Story chronicles his life and is currently airing nationally on PBS.

In 2012, as a Yamaha artist, Mr. Janis will bring a Byron's demonstrative passion to the stage with significant milestones and the ability to reach out globally through his new role as Presidential Advisor to the Yamaha Music & Wellness Institute. He will be the recipient of the following four Lifetime Achievement Awards:

Yamaha Music & Wellness Institute	May 30, 2012	National Arts Club Award	September 12, 2012
Voice Foundation's Verra Award	June 17, 2012	Breukelein Institute Gaudium Award	November 12, 2012

Byron's strong desire to be involved with meaningful and purpose driven events in line with his humanitarian and educational objectives have lead to a robust calendar. As such, Byron's calendar includes several noteworthy appearances and classes that he feels strongly about supporting.

- 2012 Juvenile Arthritis National Conference, which is a signature 3-day educational event for families affected by juvenile arthritis that focuses on health, wellness and fun for children.
- 3rd Annual Patient Experience: Empathy and Innovation Summit, a 3-day, multidisciplinary conference devoted to exploring patient experience as a key differentiator essential to the future of healthcare delivery.

Calendar of Events

The following calendar for Byron Janis reflects his outreach to date to individual chapters on behalf of the Arthritis Foundation as part of his year long partnership with them to give back and make a difference. In addition to performing and holding master class events for both organizations fund-raising Galas, Commitment to a Cure luncheons and, national awareness conferences. Byron is also conducting workshops in each city for children with Juvenile Arthritis who also play piano. Working through the individual chapters that select the children, Byron devotes an afternoon to teaching them techniques that enhance their ability to play as well as imbuing them with his indomitable spirit in overcoming adversity and imparting to them that every day is a new day. He will be conducting a milestone event at the Juvenile Arthritis Meeting in Colorado Springs, CO in July.

In addition to these events, book signings have also played an important part in Byron's initiative as he donates 25% of the proceeds from the sales of his book and DVD.

Byron Janis [was] dazzling.
The most exalting pianist of our age. This mysterious man is passionate about mystery...(he) takes(s) us far away – very far away in his Mysterious universe...
If there is a pianist who merits the name “Magician”
it is surely Byron Janis.”

A Lifetime of Commitment

The Byron Janis Story

Compendium of Events

“Byron Janis’ autobiography is both intimate and revealing, providing us a remarkable window into the soul and spirit of one of America’s most gifted musical artists. But it is much more than that. One also experiences a concert pianist’s struggle to come to terms with the debilitating onslaught of arthritis. From these ashes a phoenix rises to share with us a deeper inner journey that is inspiring and uplifting - what it means to triumph against odds, to confront and accept the reality of paranormal experiences, to be open to being truly alive in a universe full of wonder – a truly unique portrait of one of the greatest Artists of our time.”

Byron Janis

Compendium of Events

About 15 years ago, Byron Janis sat down to write his story on several different occasions, but felt himself unable to do so. Because the paranormal had always played such an important part in his life he felt unready to speak about it. And, if he couldn't speak about it, he couldn't tell the complete story; the book was set aside.

Finally, two years ago he decided he felt comfortable enough and at ease enough with the certain controversy that could follow to talk about the paranormal and the major role it has played in his life and Chopin and Beyond-My Extraordinary Life in Music and the Paranormal came to life.

The paranormal or “‘unknown’ normal” is not just a series of inexplicable events. It is the acceptance and experience of other more expanded worlds. Embracing this concept has provided a source of strength to Byron Janis as he faced the daunting challenges that psoriatic arthritis of the hands and wrists presented him. It is the message he imparts to the young children he speaks to who also suffer with arthritis; that it is mind over matter that will enable them to overcome their adversity. And, it is certainly what has allowed him to continue to perform at such a high level.

At about the same time that Chopin and Beyond was germinating, The Byron Janis Story was beginning to come together.

Emmy award winning producer, Peter Rosen, had always wanted to do a documentary about Byron Janis, but lacked the funds. However, every time there was an event, Peter was there with a camera crew capturing it for possible future use. Finally, fundraising in earnest began and Peter approached WQED Pittsburgh to be the presenting station. Since the first airing, the documentary has aired 933 times.

The Byron Janis Story is dedicated to overcoming adversity.

PBS Airing of The Byron Janis Documentary

The presenting station for the documentary was WQED Pittsburgh which aired it on October 28, 2010. The documentary was offered to member stations that then had three years in which to show it after accepting it. The first report indicated there were 34 airings by 18 stations accepting the program representing 20% market coverage. Through April of this year a milestone of 933 airings has been achieved representing a 76% market coverage. The response to the documentary has been such that starting in June 2011 re-airings began in the top ten major markets including New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Washington, D.C., all of Maryland Public TV and Miami.

A Life's Journey

Overview

“...the mystery is still a mystery; it happened in front of our eyes and ears, but one couldn’t see how it was all being done....His inspiring story was something you could hear in most of his playing. Chopin poured a life racked by disease into some of the saddest music ever written, and some of the most joyful: Janis knows where Chopin was coming from... An encore brought us a glimpse of Janis’s forthcoming musical version of “The Hunchback of Notre Dame”; the song “Like Any Man” is more sophisticated harmonically than anything heard on Broadway in years.”

Richard Dyer, The Boston Globe

Dear Mr. Janis,

On behalf of the Board of Governors and the Faculty of the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, I take great pleasure in informing you of our decision to confer upon you the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa. This degree is being presented to you for your outstanding contributions to the world of classical music and for the tenacity and perseverance you have displayed in the face of personal adversity; you remain a symbolic exemplar.

It will be a privilege for me to present this degree to you personally during the Graduation Ceremonies of the New York School, on Thursday, May 2, 2013, at Temple Emanu-el.

Please send your response to this invitation at your earliest convenience directly to Sylvia Posner, via email: sposner@huc.edu. Further details will follow upon receipt of your response.

I look forward to being with you and your family to share in this wonderful occasion. In the meantime, my very best wishes for a bright Chanukah.

Cordially,

David Ellenson

IN TRIBUTE TO BYRON JANIS

HON. TOM HARKIN
OF IOWA

Thursday, March 13, 2008

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, today I pay tribute to the accomplishments and inspirational life of Byron Janis as he approaches his 80th birthday later this month.

I learned about Mr. Janis's upcoming milestone from his good friend Dick Thornburgh, the former Attorney General of the United States. Mr. Thornburgh was a key advocate during the administration of George Herbert Walker Bush for enactment of the Americans with Disabilities Act, ADA, and I was proud to be the chief sponsor of the ADA in the Senate.

A Pennsylvania native, Mr. Janis is renowned as one of the world's most talented concert pianists. In addition, his perseverance is a source of inspiration to countless Americans. By the age of 20, his virtuosity at the piano was so extraordinary that he performed a sold out debut at New York's famed Carnegie Hall.

Later, Mr. Janis was chosen to be the first individual to represent the United States in a cultural exchange with the Soviet Union. Remarking on this mission, The New York Times wrote that "if music could replace international politics, Byron Janis could consider himself an ambassador."

In the decades since, Byron Janis has dazzled audiences worldwide. He has performed for numerous U.S. Presidents, and has been honored with countless awards from around the globe.

However, perhaps Byron Janis's greatest contribution to America lies not in his musical talent but rather in the example he has set of an individual responding to adversity with grace and courage, and with a truly indomitable spirit.

In 1973, he was diagnosed with arthritis in his hands and wrists, which could have ended his career as a pianist. But Mr. Janis refused to be stymied or stopped. As he put it, "I have arthritis—it doesn't have me."

He continued to play for 12 years before disclosing his arthritis at a White House performance. That same day, Mr. Janis assumed the role of Ambassador for the Arts for the Arthritis Foundation.

Through his continued performances and other appearances, he has raised awareness as well as funds to support the foundation's noble cause. To this day, audiences continue to be captivated by Byron Janis's musical talents, even as they are impressed by his amazing persistence in the face of adversity.

March 24 will be Byron Janis's 80th birthday. And this year also marks the 60th anniversary of his debut at Carnegie Hall. Across all those years, his determination, courage, and selfless service have embodied the American spirit at its best. His lifetime of accomplishments as a performer, cultural ambassador, and role model are truly remarkable. I am pleased today to recognize and congratulate Byron Janis for his triumphs, for his accomplishments, and for inspiring millions of individuals around the world.

HONORING BYRON JANIS: MUSICIAN, DIPLOMAT, AND INSPIRATION

HON. MICHAEL F. DOYLE
OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, April 2, 2008

Mr. DOYLE. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Byron Janis, internationally recognized as one of the world's greatest pianists. The story of his life is one of immense talent, dedication and perseverance which has captivated audiences and inspired others across America and around the world.

Byron Janis was born in McKeesport, Pennsylvania, in 1928. At the age of 15, Mr. Janis made his orchestral debut, and by age 20, had made his Carnegie Hall debut in front of a sold-out audience. Later, Mr. Janis was selected to be the first American performer to participate in a cultural exchange between the United States and the Soviet Union in 1960. On November 2, 1960, the New York Times wrote, "If music could replace international politics, Byron Janis could consider himself an ambassador". So successful was Mr. Janis' performance that the Soviet government invited him back just two years later for a six-week tour of the country. Since that time, Mr. Janis has performed for American Presidents and received acclaim around the world. Mr. Janis has been honored both in America and abroad with such distinctions as the Distinguished Pennsylvania Artists Award, the Gold Medal from the French Society for the Encouragement of Progress, and the Harriet Cohen International Music Award. He has also appeared on the Tonight Show with Johnny Carson, Good Morning America, 20/20 with Barbara Walters, and CNN.

Perhaps Mr. Janis' greatest contribution to America lies not in his graceful work at the piano, but rather the tremendous perseverance and unbreakable spirit he has shown in the face of significant adversity. In 1973, he was diagnosed with arthritis in both his hands and wrists, an affliction which seriously threatened his ability to continue practicing the craft he loved. Reflecting his will and determination to rise above the obstacle which was placed in his path, Mr. Janis once said, "I have arthritis—it doesn't have me." For 12 years, Mr. Janis continued performing, often in great pain, while keeping his condition a closely held secret.

While announcing his affliction at the White House in 1985, Mr. Janis also declared he was assuming the role of Ambassador for the Arts for the Arthritis foundation. Through his music, he has raised a significant amount of money for the Foundation's work and research. More importantly, however, his story of determination is one which serves as an inspiration and makes Mr. Janis a role model for Americans with disabilities. In spite of his condition, to this day, Mr. Janis is still performing before admiring audiences. Mr. Janis is living proof that the American spirit can and will prevail in the face of challenges large and small.

2008 marks Mr. Janis' 80 birthday as well as the 60th anniversary of his first performance at Carnegie Hall. Each year, Congress honors individuals who have distinguished themselves with acts of courage and determination which capture the essence of the American spirit and serve as an inspiration to those around them. The life and accomplishments of Byron

Janis—as a musician, ambassador, and role model—embody the best in American culture and values. I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring Mr. Janis on the occasion of these two noteworthy anniversaries.

The Composer

His Journey Evolves

“Composers, like authors, have a lot in common. Our main goal is to connect with the listener emotionally.”

Ken Hill, writer

A Performing Artist Adds Composer To His Repertoire

When I was 13, I was taken to attend my first Broadway musical Best Foot Forward. I remember how excited I was and dreamt how wonderful it would be if one day I could write a musical. That day actually came when Frank Military, the senior Vice President of the largest Music Publishing Company in the world, Warner Chappell, having heard some of the songs I had written, asked me to write the music for a proposed new musical, Victor Hugo's "The Hunchback of Notre Dame". When I spoke of my apprehension in doing so, he said he had no worries and gave me a set of lyrics to write music to. The story of the Hunchback touched me deeply, as I could identify with a disability, having one of my own; Psoriatic Arthritis which was a constant threat to disable me and prevent me from being able to pursue my career as a concert pianist. Below is a quote from Richard Dyer, describing the artistry of Maestro Janis:

"...the mystery is still a mystery; it happened in front of our eyes and ears, but one couldn't see how it was all being done....His inspiring story was something you could hear in most of his playing. Chopin poured a life racked by disease into some of the saddest music ever written, and some of the most joyful: Janis knows where Chopin was coming from... An encore brought us a glimpse of Janis's forthcoming musical version of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame"; the song "Like Any Man" is more sophisticated harmonically than anything heard on Broadway in years."

Some 6 weeks later, working day and night, I completed 22 songs. I anxiously called Frank and he came over to hear them. "Byron, you have written a great score" he said. I was overcome. "Frank, you must be joking" I said. "I never joke about music" he replied. His comments truly changed my life.

If the arthritis would one day stop me from performing, an important new road seemed open to me. Nobody was more respected in the world of popular music than Frank, so I knew I could take his praise seriously.

After hearing the score, I was also thrilled with an extraordinary letter sent to me by Pierre Hugo, the great-great grandson of Victor Hugo. It is a treasure I will always keep.

Musicals usually take many years to develop, and mine was no exception. After a couple of successful incarnations, (the last one being in Cuba), it was selected by the Theater Owners of America to be presented at their annual conference --this one taking place in Havana on 2001. The tragedy of 9/11 happened, and everything was canceled.

There are now new plans underway to bring it to the stage.

One of my dreams will have come true.

We at Warner/Chappell, have published many hit shows; My Fair Lady, Funny Girl, Gypsy, and Finnaghan's Rainbow to name a few. I feel that the Hunchback of Notre Dame with music composed by Byron Janis, will join the ranks of major Broadway "hit" musicals. The music is unique and powerful with an extraordinary melodic content which remains in the listeners ear and heart. We are all highly excited about this show!

With kind regards,

Praise for Byron Janis and CHOPIN & BEYOND

“Byron Janis’s life has been the stuff of music and of magic – and so is his extraordinary autobiography. From Chopin to Horowitz to Pablo Picasso, from the Soviet Union in the thick of the Cold War to otherworldly dimensions in which the unexpected happens, he has been on a remarkable and compelling ride. Don’t think classical music, global politics and the paranormal can mix? You will.”

Jeffrey Kluger, Coauthor of Apollo 13

“Byron Janis’s autobiography is both intimate and revealing, providing us a remarkable window into the soul and spirit of one of America’s most gifted musical artists. But it is much more than that. One also experiences a concert pianist’s struggle to come to terms with the debilitating onslaught of arthritis. From these ashes a phoenix rises to share with us a deeper inner journey that is inspiring and uplifting – what it means to triumph against odds, to confront and accept the reality of paranormal experiences, to be open to being truly alive in a universe full of wonder – a truly unique portrait of one of the greatest artists of our time.”

Hal Puthoff, Ph.D, Theoretical and Experimental Physicist

“A fascinating story of the courage and perseverance of one of the great pianists of the twentieth century and the present. I have been a fan of his for many years, and this very personal story makes me admire him even more.”

Emanuel Ax, Concert Pianist

“A wonderful and poignant story from a great musician of the modern period. An important read on important and interesting topics, including his intuitive gifts.”

Edgar Mitchell, Sc.D, Ph.D, Apollo Astronaut, Founder of The Institute of Noetic Sciences

“... I have read countless works on the paranormal, but never one quite like this and so deeply personal. Byron Janis was truly a master in his field, and his consistently bold references to paranormal incidences which took place around him are both intriguing and inspiring. ”

Paranormal News

“Byron Janis shares the unspoken challenges of living with a debilitating form of arthritis that tested his spirit and threatened his career as a piano virtuoso. His story of perseverance, courage and triumph will inspire anyone who has faced a formidable obstacle.”

John H. Klippel, M.D. President and CEO, Arthritis Foundation
